I'm looking to buy a laptop and wanted to know if I can install my OS in a notebook with a dual boot with windows 7, since I will need windows 7 drivers for the laptop keyboard, and unfortunately the motherboard is not listed anywhere that I can find. Thank you for help. A: Your motherboard is made by Asmedia aspart of Asus. It appears to be what Dell calls a JMicron motherboard. We can rule out the Asmedia ones for this motherboard as they are all known dead. The keyboards are probably made by some maker other than Dell. Your best bet is to find a reliable seller on eBay who will allow you to return the motherboard. If it works well enough then you can scrap it. A few other possibilities would be: Use the Asmedia ones. I can't confirm these are in fact working. Run the DPOS BIOS update. Run the update through the Dell Drivers website. At the moment the site appears to be down and not updated for Windows 7. Consider a new motherboard altogether. The invention relates to a semiconductor laser and in particular to a semiconductor laser using a nitride semiconductor.

Since semiconductor lasers are laser oscillators, they need some special technology for the construction of the semiconductor laser. For example, a semiconductor laser should be able to output a beam with an optical output power that exceeds 10 mW. Thus, it is necessary to manufacture a semiconductor laser, which can be reduced in beam divergence angle. A process for manufacturing a semiconductor laser is roughly divided into a growth process in which an n-type semiconductor layer is formed and a growth process in which a p-type semiconductor layer is formed. The growth processes are carried out by epitaxially growing a semiconductor layer on a sapphire substrate of which surface is formed into a (0001) plane or a c-axis of which is perpendicular to the growth direction, by metal organic chemical vapor deposition (MOCVD), molecular beam epitaxy (MBE) and metalorganic vapor phase epitaxy (MOVPE). One type of a semiconductor laser is a ridge-waveguide type semiconductor laser in which an optical waveguide is formed between a light emitting region and a rear surface of a substrate. By adopting this structure, the light emitting region can be narrowed, and thus, the increase of a current density can be suppressed. On the other hand, however, even when the
