Cancer treatment, including radiation therapy, has become more effective for localized disease. However, some cancer types, such as head and neck cancers, remain refractory to treatment. The majority of these types of cancer are diagnosed at late stages when they have already metastasized. Head and neck cancers are a diverse set of tumors found in different anatomic locations, such as the skin, mouth, and larynx. The majority of oral cancers (90%) are squamous cell carcinomas (SCC), and cancer of the head and neck is the sixth most common cancer worldwide with over 600,000 new cases diagnosed annually. This translates to more than 12,000 deaths per year worldwide due to HNC. The most common sites for
