CLEVELAND, Ohio - For the third time this year, GOP presidential hopeful Donald Trump takes aim at the Mexican government by saying: "They are sending people who have lots of problems - and they are bringing those problems with them. They are bringing drugs. They are bringing crime. They are rapists." Asked about Trump's suggestion that Mexico is knowingly sending rapists and criminals across the border, Ohio Secretary of State Jon Husted issued a statement Monday that said in part: "It's a rhetoric that only serves to divide our country. On the other hand, we know the truth about criminal networks from the border - and it includes people who have been here for a long time." Trump's statement, in its entirety, is below: "If Mexico sends its people, they're not sending their best. They're not sending you. They're not sending you. They're sending people that have lots of problems, and they're bringing those problems with us. They're bringing drugs. They're bringing crime. They're rapists. And some, I assume, are good people." Read the full statement from Husted below. Statement on Donald Trump's comments about Mexico "It's a rhetoric that only serves to divide our country. On the other hand, we know the truth about criminal networks from the border - and it includes people who have been here for a long time. "This isn't a
