The genome and products of the simian rotavirus simian SA-11 strain in different cell lines. The genomic RNA sequence of simian rotavirus simian SA-11 strain was determined from cDNA clones of the SA-11 strain. The cDNA clone contained the junction of two genes. The genomic RNA had a length of 11,822 nucleotides and has a base composition of 33.5% A, 27.9% C, 24.3% G, 11.2% U and 6.6% U. The nucleotide sequence of cDNA clone showed that simian SA-11 strain is a typical double-stranded RNA virus of group II rotavirus. The gene products of simian SA-11 strain were also studied. The S and N gene products of simian SA-11 strain were identified as 34.1 and 48.5 kDa, respectively. The M gene product of simian SA-11 strain was also identified as 52.8 kDa.Q: Android Testacular error: In both of these tests, getProperty() returns null I'm trying to run my tests in Android using Testacular, and I'm getting an error that I'm unable to resolve. 637 So.2d 841 (1994) Terry L. SMITH, Appellant, v. STATE of Florida, Appellee. No. 93-2545. District Court of Appeal of Florida, First District. July 14, 1994. *842 Terry L. Smith, pro se, Robert A. Butterworth, Atty. Gen., Thomas A. Nielsen, Asst. Atty. Gen., Tallahassee, for appellee. KAHN, Judge. We affirm the trial court's order denying the appellant's petition for writ of habeas corpus, without prejudice for the appellant to file a motion to correct sentence pursuant to rule 3.800, Florida Rules of Criminal Procedure, or a motion pursuant to rule 3.850, Florida Rules of Criminal Procedure. The appellant was sentenced to a fifteen-year term of incarceration after pleading no contest to robbery with a deadly weapon, possession of a firearm by a convicted felon, and possession of a controlled substance. The appellant subsequently filed two motions, one pursuant to rule 3.850 and the other pursuant to rule 3.800, each of which was denied without prejudice for the appellant to file a second motion pursuant to rule 3.850. After the trial court ruled on the appellant's rule 3.850 motion, the appellant filed a petition for writ of habeas corpus in the trial court. The trial court denied the petition without conducting an evidentiary hearing. This appeal ensued. In his petition, the appellant argued that he was denied effective assistance of counsel because his counsel failed to make certain motions or advise him of the possible negative impact of certain motions. He also argued that he did not understand the plea agreement and that his plea was involuntary because he was promised that a mandatory minimum sentence would not be imposed. In order for an ineffective assistance claim to be cognizable in the context of a rule 3.850 motion, "the claim must allege facts that, if proved at an evidentiary hearing, would establish a basis for relief." State v. Hill, 598 So.2d 246, 248 (Fla. 1992). The appellant's ineffective assistance allegations pertained solely to the time that was allowed for investigation. The appellant did not allege facts which, if proved at an evidentiary hearing, would establish a basis for relief. In addition, the record demonstrates that the appellant entered an Alford[1] plea. This court has previously recognized that such pleas
