Audio Files: MP3..Apple said last week that the company began rolling out a new low-power CPU core to the A9 in the 12-inch MacBook. The report that the company is in the midst of planning a smaller-size iPad in 2014 also leaked. New alleged schematics from the same source that have been posted online by MacRumors say Apple has confirmed the A8X for the rumored iPad mini. Reportedly code-named Fleck, Apple has included the same triple-core architecture that has launched in the iPhone 5s. The hardware in the iPad 4 and larger iPads uses a dual-core A6X, but the A8X is a small and efficient chip. As always, it is difficult to tell a whole lot about the hardware. The most we can say with certainty is that the A8X appears to be a dual-core chip, like the A6X. The A7X in the iPhone 5s would be roughly an A6X with less RAM. The A7 in the iPhone 5 is also an A6 with less RAM. The A8 in the iPhone 5s is a 32- e79caf774b
