A through-the-lens camera that uses a newly developed zoom is hitting the market. The $1,500 GoPro 4K Camera allows the user to see the subject and what's going on behind the subject in high definition. The GoPro 4K Camera now has both a high definition and HD setting. The camera can also shoot full HD in a low-light environment up to 30 feet away. The GoPro 4K Camera first launched in June 2014 and was geared to people who like to film their stunts or activities. "The higher the definition, the better it is to be able to see a lot of things happening before you... because you don't want to miss a thing," said Chris Brown, GoPro vice president of product marketing. The new settings include a 3,840 x 2,160-pixel high definition setting for 720p (in both 1080i and 1080p) as well as a 2,160 x 1,200-pixel full HD setting. The camera is also updated with an image processor that allows users to shoot in a very low-light environment. People are buying the GoPro 4K Camera for a wide range of sports activities, but Brown said he would advise people to wear a helmet. "Go 6d1f23a050
